800 MILE SERVICE

Lima and Iquitos, With Many Barriers Between, Are Easily Linked

The first step in the establishment of a trans-continental air route between Lima, Peru on the west coast and Para, Brazil, on the east coast of South America, has been made in the inauguration of an air line between Lima and Iquitos, Peru, by the Peruvian Naval Air Service.

Following the first official reports of the success of the Peruvian venture, the Brazilian Government has proposed to complement this service by means of seaplanes which will fly the route from Iquitos, Peru to Leticia, Manaus, and thence to Para, Brazil, a distance of 2300 miles in 26 hours. This will establish the first South American trans-continental route spanning the distance of 3100 miles from Lima, Peru to Para, Brazil in about 36 flying hours. In this manner the whole trip across the continent of South America will be shortened to four or five days in place of two months required at present.

During 1927, Commander H. B. Grow, director of the Peruvian Naval Air Service, organized the Peruvian Flying Service and purchased from the Keystone Aircraft Corporation of Bristol, Pa., six planes of the "Pronto" type powered with a single Wright "Whirlwind" motor, to be used in the 800 mile Lima-Iquitos flying service.

The inauguration flight was made by Commander H. B. Grow and Lieutenant J. Alvarino in the Keystone Prontos on January 12th from San Ramon to Iquitos. The first stop was made at Puerto Bermudez where a well equipped airport had been established. Thence the route carried the aviators to the town of Masisea on the Ucayali River at which point a second base for both land and seaplanes had been established. Comfortable living quarters for twenty employees have been constructed at Masisea. Here the flyers changed their Keystone land planes into seaplanes by removing four bolts and substituting pontoons for landing gear. The flight continued up the Ucayali River to Iquitos which is the eastern terminus of the air line. The base at Iquitos has been made into a modern airport with hangars, machine shops and a staff of thirty-six men.

At the completion of the flight, Commander Grow reported to the Peruvian Government that the maps of the territory which they traversed were almost useless and contained no mention of many of the lakes, mountains and rivers which they crossed.

This regular aerial service linking Lima on the western seacoast with Iquitos on the extreme eastern border, has at last opened up a hitherto vast and isolated region lying behind the barricades of the Andes Mountains and brought Peru into direct contact with the rest of the world.

This Iquitos region, rich in minerals, oils and rubber products has heretofore been one of the most inaccessible points in the whole of South America. Lying 800 miles from Lima, Peru, and 2300 miles from Para, Brazil, it has offered only two ways of approach. The best route has been via Brazil where a journey almost across the entire continent of South America via the Amazon is necessitated before reaching Iquitos. Many days are required for the trip and the service is far from regular. The other route from Lima to Iquitos although only 800 miles, presents almost insurmountable barriers and takes the traveler from 21 to 23 days to complete the trip. Primitive are the modes of transportation in scaling the snow-capped peaks of the Andes Mountains which are accomplished on mule-back. Often reaching altitudes as high as 15,000 feet, the cold mountain air in sharp contrast to the hot tropical climate of the lowlands, calls upon all the traveler's powers of resistance to meet sudden change.

At Tarma, near the river head of the Ucayali, the wayfarer is forced to change from mule to an Indian dugout canoe and several days are consumed in navigating the treacherous waters of the Amazonian tributary before reaching Puerto Bermudez. From there on the region is low and swampy. Clouds of mosquitoes, germ laden, rise out of the heat of the murky stream, carrying their deadly message—a warning to travelers that they must begin dosing on quinine and whiskey. Wild and desolate is the country traversed and it has been practically unexplored. It takes nearly a month to cover the 800-mile distance.

Today, the Keystone planes will make two round trips a week from San Ramon to Iquitos, flying over dense virgin forests, low swampy marshlands and at one point over the highest peaks of the Andes Mountains, 15,000 to 20,000 feet above sea level. They will span the distance in about nine flying hours as against three

BIRDS AND ANIMALS DISCERN GAME REFUGE

Tracks Show How Grouse Return To Territory When Sensing Danger

OTHER STATE ITEMS

HARRISBURG, Mar. 1 (INS)—Birds and animals show an uncanny ability to discern State game refuges and use them for their own protection, although the only visible indications of the extent of a refuge are a brushed out line through the woods, a single strand of wire, and posters.

Cecil Marsh, State Game Refuge Keeper of Refuge No. 17, located near Emporium, recently made the nine-mile trip around the refuge under his care and in the snow noted the tracks of at least six ruffed grouse which had run out from the refuge for a short distance, and then, evidently sensing danger, hurriedly scampered back to safety within the wire. The fresh snow made it possible to determine what the creatures of the woods had been doing. Along the refuge line, which is always kept free of brush by the refuge keeper, were tracks of red foxes and other predatory animals which had been hunting prey.

Within the refuge were many crossed and recrossed tracks of deer, of cotton-tail and snow-shoe rabbits, of squirrels, and numerous smaller creatures, all of them free from molestation within the sanctuary. The grouse, at least, seemed to know that the refuge wire marked their safety line, and they hastened to return.

Marsh has trapped about thirty foxes, and over ten wild cats this season, as part of his campaign in controlling the enemies of game.

Mrs. Mrank Carlen Is Tendered Surprise Party

A few evenings ago a number of friends of Mrs. Frank Carlen tendered her a party at her home on Palsington avenue, Tullytown.

The affair was a complete surprise to Mrs. Carlen and was in honor of her birthday.

The home was very prettily decorated, the color scheme of pink and white being used.

The evening was spent in a general social way, many games being played. Music was also a feature of the evening. After the social time refreshments were served. Mrs. Carlen was the recipient of many useful gifts.

Among those present were Mrs. Mitchell and son, Mr. and Mrs. George Ostermeyer and daughter, Evelyn, Mrs. Walter Strouse, Mrs. Richard Mayberry, Mrs. John Summers, Miss Rose Wright, Miss Anna Wright, Mrs. Hannah Wright, Mrs. Harold Roberts and daughter, Miss Ethel Roberts, Mr. Stanford Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Walters, Sr., Mr. Carl Stroup, Mr. Frank Carlen and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Watson and daughter, Miss Alice Watson, of Morrisville.

Twenty Years Old, But Only Has Five Birthdays

A young man residing on Bath street is counted among those few individuals who are privileged to celebrate their birthday anniversaries only once in four years.

Marvin McEuen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. McEuen, 715 Bath street, although born on February 25, 1908, just celebrated the fifth anniversary of his birth yesterday. The young man has been in the world, however, for 20 years.

Mr. McEuen is arranging to entertain a number of friends on Saturday evening in honor of the occasion.

VISITS MOTHER

Mrs. Louis Hickey and son, Robert, of Chester, are making an extended visit with Mrs. Hickey's mother, Mrs. Nellie Heath, of Spruce street. Mrs. Hickey who has been ill, is recuperating at her mother's home.

Echoes of the Past

By Doron Green

In that day, before National Banks had come into existence, currency was issued by State Banks. It seems that in Bristol there existed a dirth of fractional currency to meet the demand for change, and accordingly, town council took advantage of certain peculiar privileges which it enjoyed as a Borough corporation, and issued what was called a scrip loan for $5,000. The scrip or certificates of indebtedness were printed on paper about 2 1/4 inches wide by 6 inches long and passed for currency. They were issued in denominations as small as one and two cents. Some of these scrip certificates are in the possession of the Farmers National Bank and are still well preserved. During the years 1837-38 town council placed in circulation scrip certificates amounting in the aggregate to $7,689. They were sold to the business men of the town and passed for currency.

It might be interesting to note that in those days, in order to relieve the stringency in fractional currency, individual business men would issue due bills resembling scrip certificates, and these passed for currency. The Farmers National Bank has in its possession some of these due bills issued by a Mill street business man named David Michener, who is remembered by many of the older citizens today. During the Civil War the Farmers National Bank issued scrip certificates which helped to relieve the demand for fractional currency.

At a general town meeting held July 26, 1850, a committee was appointed to prepare a draft of a new charter, which with slight amendments was passed by the Legislature and approved February 15, 1851. It increased the number of councilmen to nine, but abolished the office of second burgess. The Burgess and Council in meeting February 25, 1853, took into consideration the propriety of asking such amendments in the borough charter, as shall secure to the corporation the power and control in opening and extending streets and the jurisdiction of the port in building and extending wharves and landings. It was determined that these privileges should be asked, and an act was passed at the session of 1853, giving the Burgess and Council the necessary powers. The council was increased to ten members in 1863, and to 12 in 1878 when the Borough was divided into three wards for election purposes. Today it numbers eighteen members, three being elected from each ward. Prior to 1863 all officers were elected annually, but subsequently the Burgess and Council were elected for two years, two of the latter being chosen each year from each ward. Within the last few years the Burgess and Council have been elected for four years.

In 1856 town council began a systematic effort in the direction of permanent improvements to streets, when by its orders, Dorrance street was paved, curbed and graded.

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 1.—The jury trying the case of William J. Hohlefelder, of Doylestown, charged with aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery, yesterday acquitted him and directed that the prosecutrix, Mrs. Patrick McGowan, of the Central Hotel, Point Pleasant, pay two-thirds of the costs and that Hohlefelder pay the other one-third.

The case was tried before Judge William C. Ryan, who directed that a verdict of not guilty be found on the charge of aggravated assault and battery. The jury deliberated on the assault and battery charge and returned a verdict of acquittal.

The defendant counsel, former Senator Webster Grim, of Doylestown, called a number of character witnesses, all of whom testified that the defendant's reputation was of the very best kind. His defense was that he did not strike Mrs. McGowan as she says he did and that he was at home in Doylestown at the time of the alleged assault and battery.

The defense also endeavored to show that the arrest of Hohlefelder was a frame-up on him as a result of efforts he has made to take possession of the Central Hotel that he owned before entering into a deal with the husband of the prosecutrix some time ago.

Fred Young, of Croydon, a tailor employed in Philadelphia, was convicted yesterday in Court No. 2 before Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg, of charges of aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery by automobile. Young's car, the Commonwealth witnesses testified, struck Miss Viola Founds, aged 33, of Croydon, and that Young continued on and never stopped. He was arrested as a "hit and run" driver, the police finding him in hiding behind a barn on his place in Croydon. Miss Founds was painfully injured, one arm being broken and she sustained other injuries. Defense attorney, Howard I. James, of Bristol, applied for a new trial in the case and the defendant was released on bail.

The last case for trial at the February term of criminal court got under way this morning before Judge Shull in Court No. 2 when Samuel Sobelman, of Philadelphia, went on trial for aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery by automobile.

VISITS HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sinclair and family, of Norristown, were Sunday guests of Mr. Sinclair's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sinclair, of Jackson street.

Rates for gas and electricity in Bristol and the Bucks County territory are to be reduced April 1. Announcement to that effect was made today by N. B. Bertolette, manager of the Bristol District of the Philadelphia Suburban-Counties Gas and Electric Company, which filed new gas and electric service tariffs with the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania at Harrisburg. Mr. Bertolette's announcement was made coincident with a statement by Arthur W. Thompson, president of the company, that the concern would make a general reduction in the rates for gas and electricity in the territory served by it, effective April 1.

The Philadelphia Suburban-Counties Gas and Electric Company operates in the counties surrounding Philadelphia. Since November, 1925, thirty-six reductions in gas and electric rates have been made by the company, with total approximate savings to consumers of $1,876,820 annually. The company's territory embraces about 1,400 square miles, having a population of more than 600,000.

A saving of $1,092,246 annually to customers of the company will result from the new lower rates for gas and electricity, which have been arranged.

"Economies of operation resulting from a consolidation of two companies which formerly served the districts embraced in the new lower rate schedules are responsible for the reductions," said Mr. Thompson, in announcing that the company had filed the new tariffs with the Public Service Commission. "The interconnection of electric lines and high pressure gas systems has played an important part in effecting these economies."

"The company's officials in recommending the rate reductions did so with the realization that in some districts the lower charges for gas and electricity would result in a loss to the company in net revenues for some time at least. This condition, however, we believe will be eliminated by an increase in the consumption of both of these household and industrial necessities."

"The new tariff schedules filed with the Public Service Commission today are in line with the policy of the U. S. I. management to share with the consumer savings resulting from the economical operation of the properties in which the company has an interest."

"The new rates for both gas and electricity that are established by the tariffs will make it possible for the consumer to use a large volume of the company's products at a lower unit cost."

"The purpose of these reductions is to put into effect rates which would encourage consumers to use more gas and electricity, thus bringing about a closer relationship of the demand for gas and electricity to the company's production capacity."

"The new rates provide substantial reductions for practically all our gas and electric customers. It is hoped these reductions will promote the use of gas for cooking and water heating and electricity for lighting and appliance and refrigeration requirements to a greater extent so that further reductions may be made possible."

"Since November, 1925, the Philadelphia Suburban-Counties Gas and Electric Company has reduced its rates for gas several times with an equivalent yearly saving to the gas customers in its territory of $977,227. During the same period the price of electricity to domestic and commercial lighting customers has been reduced, with an equivalent yearly saving to customers of $899,593."

The new gas tariff reduces the $1.90 rate in the Bucks County and Bristol districts to $1.30. These lower rates, officials say, place the price of gas within reach of all the company's customers, making it possible for them to utilize fully gas for cooking and water heating purposes.

According to Mr. Bertolette the new tariffs will become operative April 1 in the Boroughs of Bristol, Doylestown, Tullytown, New Hope, Newtown, Langhorne, Langhorne Manor, South Langhorne, Yardley, Morrisville and Hulmeville, and in the following Townships:

Doylestown, Buckingham, Solebury, Wrightstown, Southampton, Northampton, Newtown, Lower Makefield, Falls, Middletown, Bensalem and Bristol.

ENTANGLING LOANS

Opinion is again divided in this country on the question whether private investors here should lend money to Russian corporations and the Russian government at a time when the United States does not recognize a government in Russia.

Since the early days of the Harding administration the state department has been giving approval and disapproval of foreign loans. That policy was accepted by financial interests and the public alike as necessary in the disordered days following the war. But it has been under attack lately as being unnecessary interference with business.

Those who are investing in Russian securities argue that it is their money and their risk, and they cannot see how they are involving their government in international difficulties. Another argument on their side is that before the United States can sell goods to Russia American capital must help Russia to acquire economic stability.

This government has refused to recognize the soviet government until it gives evidence of good faith in international relations, recognizes honest debts made by the old regime and ceases its alleged subversive activities against other nations. These demands are doubtlessly the reasons why the state department is opposed to new Russian loans.

When an American banking institution contracted to sell in this country Russian railroad bonds, Washington was justified in warning the investing public that the railroads securing these new bonds were also security on the loans to the czaristic government repudiated by the soviet administration and in serving notice on the Russians that the position taken views the old loan as a first mortgage on the railroads.

SCOPE OF THE PRESS

Will Rogers, philosopher in cap and bells, nightly confesses to his audiences that all he knows is "what he sees in the papers"—and he is representative of a tremendous army.

The newspaper is the sole source of information and knowledge for that vast multitude of those who do not limit their reading to the newspapers turn elsewhere only for entertainment, depending upon their paper to keep them informed on the economic, political, scientific and social state of the nation and world.

In any issue of a representative newspaper one will find reports from the scientists, a survey of economic and political conditions, a graphic picture of all strata of contemporary society, a summary of current history and a mirror of the wit and humor of the times. To the seeing the modern newspaper is a magic crystal in which the gazer can see the world pass before his eyes.

Into each newspaper edition is condensed hundreds of current events without geographical limitation, the essential portions of the writings and utterances of the day, and the latest addition to the "sum of human knowledge."

If society is better informed today than ever in the past it is because there are more newspaper readers.

Echoes of the Past

History of Town Council of the Borough of Bristol from Time of Incorporation to the Present.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

FOLLOWING the period of the Civil War a mill was located here for the manufacture of felt goods, and town council quickly saw the opportunity for industrial development. As an inducement and encouragement for manufacturers to locate in Bristol, town council passed an ordinance exempting all manufacturing industries from taxation for a period of ten years. Then began the period of Bristol's greatest development, which has continued without interruption up to the present time.

The year 1868 is notable in Bristol's history as marking the return of Joshua Peirce to Bristol, after several years' residence in the western part of Pennsylvania. Impressed by the favorable location of Bristol for industrial development, he established the Livingstone Mills for the manufacture from wool of felt products. For a period of nineteen years Mr. Peirce was the leading spirit in the industrial development of the Borough. In 1871 he was instrumental in establishing the Bristol Foundry which for so many years was operated by Thomas B. Harkins. The sash and planing mills originally founded by Joseph Sherman and later operated by Messrs. Peirce & Williams, were located here in 1873 through Mr. Peirce's encouragement, and in 1875, likewise through his activities, the Bristol Rolling Mills were built by Messrs. Nevegold & Schiede.

In 1876 Mr. Peirce organized for the further industrial development of Bristol, the Bristol Improvement Company, and the same year this company erected the worsted mills which were leased to the then firm of Grundy Bros. & Campion. In 1877 the Bristol Improvement Company erected for L. M. Harned & Co. the mill known as the Keystone Mill. In 1880 the same company erected the Star Mill, and in 1882 the Wall Paper Mills which were leased to the then firm of Wilson & Fenimore. In 1887 the Bristol Improvement Company erected the Bristol Carpet Mills for the firm of Thomas L. Leedom & Co.

Although Mr. Peirce was never an aspirant for political honors but preferred rather to give his whole time and energies to the industrial development of the town, yet through his activities and influence, men were brought here, who have left their impress upon the history of the local political government, during that great period of industrial development, by their activities in town council or in the position of Burgess of the municipality. The names of some of these men are: Ex-Burgesses, William H. Grundy, Thomas B. Harkins, Francis Fenimore and Ex-Councilmen, Charles N. Peirce, Joseph Sherman, Charles E. Schiede and George A. Shoemaker.

In all the activities of that period, as well as all the problems which affected the future development of the town, our local government was deeply interested. The Burgess and members of Town Council worked hand in hand with these representatives of our industrial activities and it can be said with certainty that this great industrial development would not have been possible without the splendid spirit of co-operation shown by our local government and the encouragement and support by them given to those who were backing the movement for the town's industrial growth.

THE FAMOUS FLYER'S OWN STORY OF HIS LIFE

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was born in Detroit, February 4th, 1902,—saw his first airplane in Washington. He is a crack rifle and pistol shot. Rode a motorcycle on the unpaved roads of Wisconsin. Worked in a factory as a mechanic. Tried to paddle home down the river in a "busted" boat. He was an outdoor boy, and study was hard for him, but he took up Engineering. He did circus stunts in an airplane,—was a United States Mail pilot,—and afterwards flew into all our hearts.

I'll get my father or mother to order The Bulletin.

C. W. Winter Returns From N. Y. Convention

A lightning calculator went into operation at the convention held by the National Association of Manufacturers, which was held in New York City last week. C. W. Winter, local president of the Bristol Manufacturers Association, was one of the active members of the convention. He reported that the convention was a success and that the manufacturers of the country are in a better position than ever before to meet the competition of foreign goods.

A very interesting fact brought out at the meeting was that Philadelphia is being installed in all types of homes. In 1927 fully one-fourth of the equipment sold on extended payments was for refrigerators. Mr. Oliver stated that the refrigerator is now well within the reach of the purchasing power of the average family. A new series of household appliances, including a refrigerator, is being introduced by the Whirlpool Mfg. Co. of Elkhart, Ind. They are other mechanical refinements. They include food shelves and a number of other improvements.

The president of the General Motors Research Corporation, in a recent address to the members of the Langhorne Parent-Teacher Association, pointed out that there is enough energy in a gallon of gasoline to convert a four cylinder car into a motor. Much experimenting has been done to convert this latent power into mechanical energy, but at present the annual waste in gasoline is appalling. In an effort to conserve gasoline and to increase motor efficiency, Mr. Oliver pointed out that the annual waste in gasoline is appalling. Occupants of the south wing in the Wayne Manor apartment building, were alarmed today when an explosion on the third floor killed several suites with flames and severely burned a janitor.

His clothes caught, ran to the hallway. Meanwhile several women who had hurried to the hall in an effort to learn what caused the detonation saw Clark running through the hallway. They immediately picked up rugs and blankets and enveloped the janitor, but he was taken to German town Hospital suffering from burns of the right arm and side.

weeks by the former primitive methods of transportation. San Ramon is linked to Lima on the coast by the Peruvian Central Railway and the entire trip by train and airplane consumes but two days and assures a successful continuance of the Peruvian Transport Service. Well laid out flying fields, excellently equipped bases and trained aviation employees attest to the foresight, care and judgement of the Service.

Peru, unknown and unexplored, has opened vast and hitherto impenetrable tracts of land by this latest and speediest mode of transportation.

Lindbergh Tells Of Early Stunts

The immense amount of publicity which followed in the wake of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's flight from New York to Paris last May was a direct reflection of the wide-spread interest in man and his achievement. Writers of the highest calibre vied with each other to write their impressions of him, and it is doubtful if more words were ever written about one man in so short a time. Although it is almost a year since he made the flight to imperishable fame, his name still excites millions to praise and enthusiasm.

However, no story ever written about him approximates the interest in his famous book, "We," written by himself, and telling of his life, his dreams, ambitions, and his lonely flight across the mighty Atlantic ocean, as no one but himself could tell it.

The right to publish this epic of the air in serial form has been obtained by The Evening Bulletin, of Philadelphia. The first installment was published in that newspaper on Wednesday, and will be followed by daily installments, accompanied by illustrations showing various events in the life of the Lone Eagle of the Atlantic, who is heralded as the greatest airman of today.

The first installment deals with his boyhood and the days when flying for him was but a dream. His early flying days and his barnstorming trips about the country as a wing-walker and parachute jumper also are told.

It is a powerful story, told without a trace of boastfulness, and moving swiftly along from the opening sentence. It reads so naturally and smoothly one could easily imagine it is just as Colonel Lindbergh would tell it were he seated in a hangar "ground flying" with a group of fellow airmen.

Once "We" is started it holds the interest just as certainly as if its famous author were flying over the reader's housetop in the "Spirit of St. Louis." The installments will continue until all the chapters have been printed.

—Mrs. Webb, of Muncy, Pa., is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. H. Doyle Webb, of 926 Radcliffe street.

"Good Will Ambassador" Visits Langhorne Folks

Miss Mioko Fugiyama from the Phizuko Prefecture, Japan, also "an unofficial ambassador of good will," recently visited in Langhorne. She arrived on the express from Trenton by which she left on Monday for Allentown, Pa. She is much traveled. It took her two weeks to cross the Pacific on a Japanese steamer as she stopped off to attend a reception in her honor at Honolulu. Enroute to Washington, D. C., she was entertained for short stays in Los Angeles and Chicago and later visited

New York. She plans now to visit many smaller communities throughout the east.

On Sunday morning in Langhorne, she was given an enthusiastic welcome at the Friends' First Day School; after attending meeting she visited the Methodist Sunday School where she met the Girl Scouts. After a strenuous afternoon of visiting people unable to be out she went home to spend the night with Miss Marion Longshore. On Monday she visited the public schools and the Friends' School and everywhere she went she carried with her the message of good will from thousands of Japanese children.

Miss Mioko Fugiyama is a large Japanese doll dressed in the beautiful native costume of her country; she is about as tall as a six year old child, has real hair of a wonderful blue black color and she carries a gay parasol. She is one of the 58 "Doll Ambassadors" sent by the children of Japan as a token of gratitude for the 13,000 American dolls that sailed from New York in January, 1927, gifts of children from all over the United States to the children of Japan under the sponsorship of the American Committee on World Friendship among Children.
